El Camino Students Design Eclectic

Who: El Camino College

What: Reflections...A Fashion Affair

When: June 2

Where: Marsee Auditorium, El Camino College

Stephanie Coppo wears tattoos and 1950s-inspired rockabilly clothes perfect for a rock club. However, this graduating fashion student made an elegant burgundy and ivory gown, seemingly tailored for a ballroom, and won the Best of Show Award at the 22nd annual fashion show at the Torrance, Calif.-based community college.

Coppo and the 17 other members of El Camino College's graduating fashion class debuted a whopping 150 outfits, which ranged from swimwear, denim-based casualwear and conservative office clothes to stunning eveningwear.

Other graduates who won awards were Sandy Ulen for her wetsuit-inspired beachwear and Risa Kambe for her mod- and pop art-inspired clothes. Notable pieces included Native American traditional dress made contemporary with brighter colors and new fabrics by Michelle Nuñez.—Andrew Asch
