El Camino College Awarded Endowed Scholarship for Earth Science Students

El Camino College recently received a sizeable endowed scholarship from the South Bay Lapidary and Mineral Society (SBLMS). The organization made a special presentation at its annual public show to announce the new SBLMS Wally Ford Scholarship Endowment at El Camino College.

During the presentation ceremony, SBLMS president Larry Hoskinson presented the college with the endowed scholarship of $11,000 to be managed through the El Camino College Foundation. Most of the ECC Earth Science Department attended this event, to accept the scholarship on behalf of the college.

During his speech, Hoskinson thanked the Earth Science Department for providing the SBLMS with student volunteers for the past several years. He also mentioned that faculty from the department often serve as guest speakers at the SBLMS.

The endowment will grant scholarships to two outstanding earth science students each year, which will be awarded at the Math and Science Awards Reception scheduled for May 30.
