El Camino College Presents High School Senior Day 2009

El Camino College has invited South Bay high school students to get a glimpse of college life during El Camino College's Seventh Annual "High School Senior Day," set for 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. May 15.

A highlight of the event will be keynote speaker Elizabeth Espinosa, an award-winning reporter for KTLA Prime News, who will address the students during the morning session. A native of Los Angeles, Espinosa is a graduate of UCLA and her career includes positions at several television news stations, including KTTV FOX 11 and Telemundo.

More than 800 South Bay high school seniors from more than 20 South Bay high schools are expected to attend. Participation is on a first-come, first-served basis, and interested students should see their high school counselor for more information.

In addition to finding out more about the various support services available at El Camino College, students will discover educational opportunities and career paths, from science and business to education and the arts. Career and technical education will also be covered, in addition to workshops about financial aid, choosing a major, internships, and transferring to a university.

College life and beyond will be hot topics of panel discussions led by current and former El Camino College students.

Lunch will be served and the day will wrap up with a college resource and career fair, allowing students to ask questions about specific professions and student support programs.

Event sponsors include the El Camino College Financial Aid Office, First Year Experience/Learning Communities, EOPS, Outreach and School Relations, the Bookstore, and Wells Fargo Bank.

El Camino College is located at 16007 Crenshaw Boulevard, near Torrance. For more information, call 310-660-3487.
