El Camino College Photography Student Wins Prestigious Award

El Camino College photography student Laura Bellamy recently received an Honorable Mention in the International Photography Award Competition (IPA). The prestigious jury pool included Todd James, National Geographic Magazine; Bonni Benrubi, of Bonni Benrubi Gallery in New York City; and Yossi Milo, of Yossi Milo Gallery, also in New York City.

The IPA is considered one of the most competitive photography contests worldwide and receives tens of thousands of images from all over the globe. The mission of the IPA is to salute the achievements of the world's finest photographers, to discover new and emerging talent, and to promote the appreciation of photography.

Bellamy's work has been featured on the 2009-2010 El Camino College catalog cover, in addition to area exhibits, including the recent "Diversionary: three women/mixed media voices" at the C and D Welcome Cafe and Gallery in Redondo Beach, which included both film and digital photography.
