El Camino College Foundation Gains Five New Members

The El Camino College Foundation recently added five new members to its board of directors to help further its mission to maintain and expand the college's educational programs and community involvement.

New members are Ken Hancock of Redondo Beach; Steve Napolitano of Manhattan Beach; Megan McClean, of Torrance; and Angela Simon and Luukia Smith, both of Long Beach.

Ken Hancock has been with ExxonMobil since 1983, accepting the position of mechanical manager in 2006. His community contributions have included service as a corporate American Red Cross Blood Drive coordinator and United Way employee campaign coordinator.

Steve Napolitano represents Los Angeles County Supervisor Don Knabe in the nine beach communities of Marina del Rey, Playa del Rey, Westchester, El Segundo, Manhattan Beach, Hermosa Beach, Redondo Beach, Torrance and Lomita. He is a licensed attorney specializing in education and municipal law, and is a former three-term mayor and councilmember of Manhattan Beach.

Megan McLean is the new El Camino College student faculty representative. She is the current Associated Student Body president. McLean is majoring in communications and is a member of the Honors Transfer Program and First Year Experience program on campus.

Angela Simon serves as the new El Camino College faculty representative. She is a professor of psychology and received her doctorate in 1991 from the University of California at Davis. Simon joined the El Camino College faculty in 1996 and was honored as one of the college's Distinguished Women in 2005.

Luukia Smith is the El Camino College classified representative. She is an accounting technician and joined the El Camino College staff in 1985. Smith is the president of the El Camino College classified employees union and serves on various campus organizations. She was honored as one of the Distinguished Women of ECC in 2004.
