

COMMUNICATION STUDIES

Transfer Requirements

The following requirements for the major are subject to change without notice. To assure accuracy of the information on this sheet, you should consult with a counselor, the articulation officer, or review articulation agreements via the internet at www.assist.org.

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

Communications is a suitable major for such professions as public relations, advertising, education, social services, law, or public service. The major can be combined with a variety of specialized fields (e.g., Business, Journalism, Psychology, Marketing, Administration of Justice, and Broadcasting) for careers in business, government or industry. Communications integrates courses in interpersonal, intercultural, organizational and mass communication and public relations. For additional information on careers and job opportunities, see an advisor in the Career Center or a career counselor.

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, BERKELEY

B.A. Media Studies: Media Studies at Berkeley is not a media production major. The program uses perspectives from the social sciences and humanities to examine the mass media. Admission to Berkeley does not guarantee admission to a particular major. Students must submit a separate application to the department after arrival at Berkeley. Students must present strong grades in prerequisite courses. Additionally, students who have completed 70 or more units or whose GPA in the prerequisites and other courses falls below a 3.2 must submit a graded research paper (5 pages in length) with their application in order to demonstrate critical writing and research skills necessary to succeed. AP scores cannot be used for major prerequisite courses.

One course from each of the following four groups:

Group I: History 102; Group II: Political Science 1; Group III: Anthropology 2 or Economics 1 and 2 or Psychology 5 or Sociology 101; Group IV: Journalism 12

*Note: This major is offered under the College of Letters and Sciences: students must complete IGETC or UCB’s L & S requirements in Reading and Composition, Foreign Language, and Quantitative Reasoning by the end of the spring semester prior to fall transfer to Berkeley.

UNIVERSITY OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

B.A. Communication www.usc.edu/admission/undergraduate/apply/transfer.html

Admission to the Annenberg School of Communication is competitive. Only 40-45 students are admitted each year. The entering transfer applicants were admitted with an average GPA of 3.67 or higher (GPA does not guarantee admission). Students should complete USC's general education pattern and the English writing requirement. Students will need to submit one letter of recommendation from a college professor. This major requires a third semester of a foreign language. There are no lower division prerequisites; however, Annenberg considers the following factors: 1) interest and commitment to major demonstrated by internships, employment, student clubs, and community service, 2) leadership in campus organizations, 3) employment, family responsibility and other circumstances that may have impacted academic performance, 4) it is recommended that students take college statistics for upper division course work preparation, 5) Students should develop critical thinking and writing skills and have strong grades in composition courses.
