

FOREIGN LANGUAGE

Transfer Requirements

The following requirements for the major are subject to change without notice. To assure accuracy of the information on this sheet, you should consult with a counselor, the articulation officer, or review articulation agreements via the internet at www.assist.org.

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

The study of foreign language as a major includes language, literature and culture. Career opportunities exist in U.S. government agencies, international organizations and international business. Careers in translation, interpreting and Foreign Service may require several years of experience. Foreign language can be a useful adjunct in fields such as social welfare, health, public administration, journalism, law and education. Prospective teachers may major in foreign language for the Standard Teaching Credential. Teachers may wish to continue with graduate study toward a Specialist Credential to work in Bilingual/Cross Cultural programs.

Recommended preparation for a major in any foreign language is two years of one foreign language or higher. History, or other courses related to the geographic area would be valuable. Foreign language majors are encouraged to participate in international study programs to help perfect their mastery of the language and to gain cultural insight.
