PROPOSAL DESCRIPTION
The Puente Project is a year-long writing, counseling and mentoring program designed to help Mexican-American community college students succeed in academic and career goals. Begun in 1982 as a pilot program by Chabot College with a grant from a private foundation, Puente is now in ten California community colleges. The objective of this proposal is to train English teacher/Mexican-American counselor teams from ten additional colleges. The teams will receive initial training at a two-week intensive summer institute conducted at the University of California at Berkeley. During the ensuing academic year, the teams will begin Puente on their campuses and will receive on-going training throughout the year.
