#102-87-01
This project proposes an intensive four-day seminar, April 26-29, 1988, at the UCLA Conference Center at Lake Arrowhead for 150 community college English teachers. The seminar will be led by Dr. Robert Scholes of Brown University, an outstanding scholar and teacher. The seminar will focus on important new critical theories about literature and their applications to teaching. Lectures and small group sessions will relate these theories to short fiction by Richard Wright, poetry by Emily Dickinson, and Shakespeare's 'Hamlet', all works common to introductory literature courses at the two-year college. The seminar small groups session will be led by master teachers from two and four year colleges and universities in California. Seminar participants will act as both students and teachers in assimilating practical new theories and methodologies for teaching.

The project is co-sponsored by the statewide English Council of California Two-Year Colleges (ECCTYC) and will be directed by three ECCTYC Board members from three different colleges.
